For years of using an approach I called RANC(the RESTORATION of the ACTIVITI of NERVE CENTERS) there were no cases of lasting health declining. Temporary disorders of single functions are possible during 2-3 weeks. They appear in a form of malaise, blood pressure surges, weakness. Although not everybody has these side-effects. The general rule is: the worse patient health state, the higher possibility that these symptoms will occur.

Besides, bad state of health does not mean pain but a number of dysfunctions which are difficult to determine. Therefore, neither gender, nor age, nor diagnose affect the possibility of temporal exacerbation of symptoms. It would be strange if such a strong influence on the nervous system does not have temporal side-effects. On the contrary, the emergence of these reactions of one or another intensity means that processes of reconstruction in regulatory systems activity started. Moreover, when using any treatment approach there is always a question about its advantages and disadvantages. In comparison with other treatment approaches, suggested approach is more effective and safe at the same time.
